The ceremonies continue until Saturday, and a special effort will be made to see that the Colorado visitors receive the recognition they are entitled to. I will see to this personally. I can appreciate Penbody's predicament exactly, for I recall when I went to Washington to attend an inaugural as Governor I was forced to make my own arrangements. "We came here with our wives and daughters, members of the Governor's stad, members of the World's Fair State Commission, prominent State officials, Congressmen, business men and a band of seventy-two pieces," said Governor Peabody last night, "and with the exception of Mr. Werthelmer we have not seen a single member of the Entertainment Committee, have not received a single card to any club and not an invitation to a single function

"The slight has been so complete that we are persuaded to believe that the fault must be with some particular official who was intrusted with all of the plans and has quite forgotten us. Colorado is one of the eriginal Louisiana Purchase States, and we have $125,000 to spend on a State build-ing and have a wonderful exhibit to present to the World's Fair. There are members of my party who want to return home and abandon the project of having our State represented at the Exposition, but I cannot say that this would be wise.

"To-morrow between 9 and 11 a. m. Mrs. Peabody and myself and our daughters will hold an informal reception at the Southern Hotel. We want those who did not see us in the parade to know that we are in town. We have many friends in St. Louis, and we are anxious to meet them." THE COLORADO DELEGATION.

Clergyman Who Officiated at Vanderbilt - Rutherfurd Wedding Ignores Three Messages.

London, April 20.-At the night session of the London Diocesan Conference the Bishop of London, the Right Reverend Arthur F. Ingram, made a statement to the effect that he had thrice sent for an explanation from the Reverend Mr. Hadden regarding the Vanderbilt-Rutherford wedding and that none had been received. The galleries and floor of the little church house, in the shadow of Westminster Abbey, were crowded in anticipation of the Bishop's announcement.

Arising amid intense silence, the prelate said he had hoped to present to the conference an explanation from the officiating clergyman in the matter of the "grave scandal which recently had occurred in the scandal which recently had occurred in the diocese."

He could only surmise that a family be-reavement, the death of a child, was responsible for Mr. Hadden's having entirely ignored the Bishop's letters and messages. The Hishop characterized the use of S. Mark's Church for the performance of the ceremony as constituting a "grive moral scandal," add expressed his determination not to enter the church until due reparation had been made.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL New York, April 30.-Hundreds of person throughout the northern section of Westthat their farms and homsteads are soon to be wiped out of existence for the purpose of preserving that part of the New York City water supply which flows into the Kensico Reservoir.

The territory to be condemned coveran era of about five square miles and has a population of nearly a thousand, many of whom are now receiving notices that they must vacate their homes and go, bag and baggage, to higher ground. The property to be pre-empted will cost more than a million dollars and is situated in five towns along the Wampus River and tribu-

About one-half of the village, including a church, a graveyard, containing about all bodies; a hotel, a sawmill and a grisamil, will be among the property condemned. Among the most noted landmarks to be appraised is st. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal Church. For nearly 100 years years this old edifite has stood in the variety, and its sweet-sounding beli has cailed the people for miles around to woiship. It was built in 1818, and is said to be the third oldest Episcopal Church in Westchester County.

the people for miles around to woising. It was built in 1818, and is said to be the third oldest Episcopai Church in West-chester County.

Surrounding it is a cemetery containing the graves of many heroes of the Revolutionary and Civil wars. The bodies are to be exhumed and reburied in Kensico and other cemeteries, and the owners will receive pay from the city for their plots.

REFUGLUTIONARY RELICS.

Another landmark which will also be mourned by the villagers is a barn on the Hailock estate. It was here, in 1718, that Major Talmage, a Revolutionary officer, had his headquarters. Major Andre, the British spy, was detained over night in the old structure after his capture near North Tarrytown, by order of General Washlington, who, with his staff, heard of the news in Peckskill. The barn is near the Wampus River, and is still well preserved, as it was built out of hand-hewn oak shingies, almost as durable as iron.

The Commissioners will also confiscate the old village grist mill, which has been grinding the wheat of the Armonk farmers since 172. The mill is now owned by I. F. Knewlton, a Civil War veteran.

Hundreds of children in Armonk and its vicinity are also in sorrew because their favorite skating place, Wampus Pond, a beautiful body of water, which covers for ty-five acres, is to be drained to furnish water for the population of New York.

There are in all about thirty owners who will appear before the Commissioners to present testimony regarding the values of their properties, The farmers distike to lose their old homester's and landmarks, and they are determined to make the city of New York pay for them dearly. The passing of Armonk is likely to be one of the most expensive proceedings in the history of the watershed concumuation, second only to the famous omaibus proceeding, which has lasted about ten years.

The commission will probably be in session a year or more, and will call many expert witnesses to testify as to the value of the farms, Many of the farmers are already buying land outside of the

SHE TEACHES HOW TO SAVE THE BABY

Physician Follows Up Convalescents and Instructs Their Mothers.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

New York, April 20.—To teach the preventive measures which will keep half the city bables, even of the poorest homes, from becoming pailed invalids the Bables' Hospital has introduced an innovation. This is the visiting physician, who goes to the mothers to tratuct them in the common-sense methods of bringing up a baby. The tiny patients, who are dismissed from the hospital as soon as convalescence sets in, have been so frequently returned, from lack of proper nourishment or the most ordinary precautions for health, that some step was felt to be necessary.

Once the little sufferer has been brought back from the Land of the Shadows any relapse is almost certain to be fatal. So while convalescence is in progress—and the hospital is no place for those who are on the high road to health—the doctor goes to each home to show the mother how to supplement the nurse.

CARRIES FIGHT FURTHER.

Doctor Emmeline L. Coolidge is the physician who has opened the campaign of prevention for the hospital. Whenever a patient is dismissed she is notified, and promptly appears to acquaint herself with the conditions under which the baby must take its chances to recover or die. She is eminently practical. She refuses to be content with any more word instruction. She walks into the kitchen, takes a rapid inventory of the pots and pans, selects those which best suit her purpose and goes to work.
